A Note about Timezones and Daylight Savings

All of our program times are maintained in Eastern Time (Boston/Harvard time). This timezone experiences a daylight savings change on November 2nd, moving clocks back one hour. Be sure to factor in Daylight Savings Time Changes as you convert Eastern Time (ET) into your own timezone to lock the below sessions into your schedule. Daylight savings changes are occurring on different dates in many countries. Many Northern hemisphere countries will be moving clocks back an hour while many countries in the Southern hemisphere will be moving clocks forward. Please be sure to check your countries dates and adjust your timezone calculations accordingly - this time-zone converter with specific calendar days could help you.

A Note on Guild Sessions

Our program participants have been selected from all over the world. Doing synchronous learning together across vastly different time-zones requires a combination of considerate design and forward planning by attendees. To this end, participants will work in timezone compatible working groups of 20-25 participants. Within a few months of the program start, and after you have completed the program registration, you will receive your Guild Session time allocation, and you will have 48 hrs within which to let us know if you have significant scheduling conflicts and need to be reassigned to another group with a different time allocation.
